- A user can be either a handling agent or an operator.
- The web-based PPR system is administrated by Geneva Airport Authority (Aéroport International de Genève, AIG).

- The user agrees to use the web-based PPR system in an appropriate manner.
- An operator is only authorised to proceed with a PPR slot reservation for its own aircraft fleet included in the operator's PPR profile.
- All information given by the system should only be used for the purpose it was intended for. The information appearing on the website is based on estimated (planned) runway capacity, taking into account the reservations already received from the other operators.
- AIG cannot guarantee the accuracy of the data.
- AIG does not guarantee the functioning of the web-based PPR system.

In case of abusive use of the system, the Geneva Airport Authority reserves its right to refuse or cancel any reservation and take any appropriate action such as denying a user access to the web-based PPR system.
